Good traceability of pharmaceuticals is essential in healthcare systems. Compliance with Good Distribution Practice (GDP) requirements is one of the most challenging aspects of the pharmaceutical supply chain. Since the implementation of the European Medicines Agency's (EMA) EU Regulation (EU) No. 1179/2011, pharmaceutical companies have increasingly used traceability as a quality management tool. The objective of the present study was to evaluate the Leuven pharmaceutical traceability system. The traceability data of antibiotics in the Leuven Pharmacies Database from 2010 to 2014 were analysed. The systemic storage time, storage temperature and the microbiological analysis results were included. The percentage of antibiotics kept in their original packaging and stored at recommended temperature was analyzed. In addition, the mean stock volume of antibiotics in the Leuven Pharmaceutical Network (LPN) in 2014 was evaluated. During the study period, antibiotic traceability was implemented at all pharmacies in the Leuven area. Of the 118 antibiotics registered in the Leuven Pharmacies Database, 97 (83.6%) were available for the whole period of analysis. Of these, 72% of antibiotics were stored at recommended temperature (24h) and in their original packaging. The stock volume of antibiotics in 2014 was 494.5 items with a median storage time of 16.0 months. The mean storage time of antibiotics was significantly longer for the privately run pharmacies than for the out-of-hours pharmacies (pQ:
