Preventing a react app from crashing when received database updates So I am currently making a react app. The issue I am having with the code I am writing is that when the user updates the website and database, the app can crash because it receives a new version of the database. The database update is run once every minute. app.js const {ssc} = AppConfig; ReactDOM.render(, document.getElementById('root')); const Store = configureStore(reducer, ActionCreator); function configureStore(initialState = {}, reducer, ActionCreator = ({dispatch}) => {}) { const enhancer = composeWithDevTools(applyMiddleware(createMiddleware(thunk, logger), createWebpackDevMiddleware())); const store = createStore(rootReducer, initialState, enhancer); return store; } function middlewareStack(stack) { return [...stack, axiosAuth]; } class App extends Component { constructor(props) { super(props); this.state = { isRefreshing: false, data: null }; } componentDidMount() { this.setState({isRefres
